

JASON YEAGER

DIRECTOR OF VINEYARDS

fourth generation grape farmer from the napa valley who visited paso robles and immediately saw its potential. jason manages all three of our vineyards.

Growing up in rural Napa, Jason began farming at a very young age. "Agriculture, horticulture, viticulture – all I knew is that I wanted to do something where I could work outside on a farm." Combining "boots on the ground" experience with formal education Jason completed a degree in Horticulture and Fire Science at Solano College while working at various Napa nurseries.

He then went on to earn Viticulture and Enology degree at Napa Valley College and become the vineyard manager of Napa's Flora Springs. He worked under the direction of Pat Garvey, Flora Springs co-founder and vineyard director, until he decided to migrate south to join Niner Wine Estates in early 2011. Jason lives in Paso Robles with his adorable dog, Kayla. Jason is a home-brewer, and has enjoyed this hobby for the last 20 years.

ANDY NINER

PRESIDENT

second generation of the family, andy started helping his parents with the day-to-day operation of the company in 2013. he is responsible for making sure all the different parts of the business are working together and moving in the right direction.

After studying economics at Colby College in Maine, Andy started his career working in finance for Cambridge Associates in Boston. He then moved to California and worked as a product manager in a small sunglass company in San Luis Obispo, earned his MBA from U.C. Berkeley and spent several years working in strategic planning for Levi Strauss & Company in San Francisco.

His love for the central coast and the importance of the family business ended up being the catalyst for joining the team. He joined the company full time in the spring of 2013. Outside of work Andy bikes, climbs, wears a puffy vest and old raggedy New Balance shoes to Winemaker dinners, cooks and spends time at home with his wife Carolyn and newborn daughter Cora.
